Introduction

Spanning an impressive 7,607 ± acres in the heart of Monterey and San Benito counties near King City, Reynolds Ranch represents a true legacy property, proudly owned by the same family for over 116 years. Offering a compelling combination of productive irrigated farmland, expansive grazing land, and abundant water resources, the ranch is a standout opportunity in California's Central Coast region. With deep agricultural roots and a rich history of stewardship, this property is both a working operation and a long-term investment in land, water, and heritage.

The ranch portion encompasses 6,863.64 ± acres of rangeland, supported by two wells, natural springs, and the seasonal San Lorenzo Creek. A 2,368 sq. ft. ranch home anchors the headquarters, complemented by a caretaker home with a detached 4-car garage, barn, shed, livestock corral, and numerous outbuildings that support the day-to-day operations. Additionally, there is Spring Cottage, located roughly a half mile from the main ranch compound on a separate land parcel, which has full utilities. Currently, the ranch benefits from an income-producing cattle lease, offering passive income while preserving the ranching tradition that has been maintained here for generations.

The farming component includes 743 ± acres, of which 552.60 acres are highly productive level Class I & II soils, well-suited for a wide range of row crops. Currently farmed in leafy greens, the irrigated acreage is supported by a developed irrigation system including two high-production wells and retention ponds with an income-producing lease in place with a large local agricultural cooperative, providing reliable annual revenue. The soil quality, water availability, mild Mediterranean climate, and existing infrastructure offer significant flexibility for future crop rotations or diversified production. Utilities are also in place, making this farmland fully equipped for ongoing agricultural or other diversified uses.

Together, the farm and ranch present an exceptional, large-scale offering rarely seen on the market. With its blend of income potential, water resources, working infrastructure, and deep agricultural heritage, this property is uniquely positioned to carry forward a proud legacy while supporting future agricultural, ranching, or conservation ambitions.

“The Williamson Act, also known as the California Land Conservation Act of 1965, enables local governments to enter into contracts with private landowners for the purpose of restricting specific parcels of land to agricultural or related open space use. In return, landowners receive property tax assessments which are much lower than normal because they are based upon farming and open space uses as opposed to full market value.”
– from the California Department of Conservation

History of Reynolds Ranch

The roots of Reynolds Ranch trace back to 1868, when John Reynolds and his wife Ada journeyed west to California, settling in the rugged and remote Priest Valley. John was born in London in 1840 and immigrated to the U.S. as a child. Orphaned young, he was raised on a farm in upstate New York and later worked for the Michigan Central Railroad. In 1862, he enlisted in the Union Army and fought in the Civil War, suffering two serious wounds before being honorably discharged. After returning to the railroad and marrying Ada Green, John followed the advice of a friend and moved west to California with Ada and her extended family in search of opportunity and open land.

When the Reynolds family arrived in Priest Valley, only a handful of settlers lived in the area. Their first winter was spent in a simple shake-and-mud home with a dirt floor. There were no nearby schools or post offices—the closest being 90 miles away in Gilroy. Despite the challenges, John and Ada built a life rooted in ranching and resilience. They raised seven children—four of whom survived into adulthood—and became one of the founding families of the region.

John Reynolds quickly earned a reputation as a respected rancher and businessman throughout Monterey and San Benito Counties. Over time, he acquired key properties across the valley, including the Maas place at Lonoak and parts of Campbell Canyon. Following his passing in 1895, Ada and her children carried on the ranching legacy. In 1908, Ada formally incorporated Reynolds Land and Cattle Company, becoming its initial sole shareholder. Over the next several years, the family bought out other members' shares and continued expanding the operation.

Sons Arthur and Elmer played a pivotal role in growing the ranch, including the 1914 purchase of over 27,000 acres from the Lux Divided Land Company. Their holdings were eventually divided between family members, with Arthur and Elmer managing the southern portion, including the Luther Ranch, Chaley Valley, and Monroe Lake, while other parcels were sold or retained by extended relatives. The family also built a number of properties in nearby King City and Pacific Grove, using proceeds from the ranch to invest in their communities.

From its humble beginnings in a dirt-floored cabin to one of the region's most established land and cattle operations, Reynolds Ranch is a testament to the grit, vision, and enduring commitment of a pioneering family. Today, the land continues to reflect their legacy of stewardship, resilience, and deep connection to the Central California landscape.

Cattle

The ranch's 6,863.64 ± acres of diverse rangeland are ideally suited for a thriving cattle operation. Currently, there is an income-producing cattle lease, providing a consistent and passive revenue stream. The current grazing lease allows for 200 cow/calf pairs.

Water & Recreation

A strong water system is in place here. You'll find two operable wells at the ranch, one well for the farmland, reliable natural springs, and big water storage tanks, plus the seasonal flow from San Lorenzo Creek.

The ranch offers a wide range of recreational opportunities that make full use of its diverse terrain and open space. Horseback riding and ATVing are ideal ways to explore the vast acreage. Whether you're looking for a casual ride or a full day of backcountry exploring, there's plenty of room to roam. For outdoor enthusiasts and hunters, the property supports an abundance of wildlife. The landscape provides excellent habitat for elk, deer, wild pig, quail, fox, coyote, and more. The varied topography also makes the ranch ideal for hiking and simply enjoying the solitude and natural beauty of this historic land.

Improvements

The ranch headquarters is thoughtfully laid out and well-kept, offering a welcoming and functional setup. As you pass through the gated entrance, the first thing you come to is the main house, which is approximately 2,368 square feet. The entire headquarters area is fenced, with the main house featuring charming white picket fencing around both the front and back yards. The home is very well maintained and beautifully landscaped. There are comfortable spaces for relaxing or entertaining, with a brick-paved patio with bar, a lawn area, an outdoor dance floor perfect for parties, and a charming gazebo that adds character to the property.

Improvements Cont'd: Main Home

Inside, the home has a classic country feel, with screened front and back porches perfect for enjoying ranch views. The layout includes 4 bedrooms and 1.5 bathrooms, offering plenty of space.

Improvements Cont'd: Caretaker Home & Mobile Home

Next to the main home, you'll find a caretaker home with a 800 sq. ft. detached four-car garage and a 1,200 sq. ft. manufactured home. Each of these additional buildings is well-maintained, providing excellent utility and complementary living or storage space.

Improvements Cont'd: Spring Cottage

The property also includes a 1,533 sq. ft. quaint spring cottage with separate location and utilities.

Improvements Cont'd: Barn & Outbuildings

Completing the headquarters' operational infrastructure is an impressive 4,410 square foot classic red barn with adjacent working corrals, ideal for livestock management. A 2,990 square foot open-front metal utility shed, providing generous space for equipment or hay storage, and other additional smaller outbuildings.

Farm

The farm portion of the property totals 743.96 acres, with approximately 552.60 acres of productive farmland with 40 of those acres in certified organic production and 191.36 acres of hillside and bluff. The farmland is irrigated by a developed irrigation system including two high-production wells and retention ponds. The 552.60 acres consist of Class I & II soils—highly productive and ideal for a variety of row crops. Currently, this irrigated ground is in active production, leased to a well-established local agricultural cooperative growing leafy greens. The lease provides reliable income. Farm improvements include a shop building that adds utility and support to the operation.
