Introduction

As Mark Twain wisely observed, “Buy land, they’re not making it anymore.” In an era defined by growth and change, Fall Run Ranch stands as a rare constant, 3,133 ± acres of enduring land positioned for those who think not only in years, but in generations. This is more than a ranch, it is a legacy landscape where water, land, and stewardship converge to create lasting value. Ideally located just 1.65 miles north of the Lincoln, CA Regional Airport and a 45-minute drive from Sacramento in thriving Placer County, Fall Run Ranch balances accessibility with permanence.

The ranch boasts 6.75 CFS of irrigation water from the Nevada Irrigation District, enough to irrigate 771 ± acres, nearly 2.5 miles of year-round Raccoon Creek, established water rights, vernal pools, and three year-round storage ponds teeming with waterfowl. Anchored in working agriculture, the improvements include four homes, barns, four feeding barns, an equipment barn with dual roll-up doors, equipment sheds, an electrified shop with concrete floors, and multiple historic outbuildings. Comprehensive livestock facilities, including corrals, loading chutes, perimeter and cross-fencing, position the ranch for continued operational success.

As one of the fastest-growing regions in California, the surrounding landscape continues to evolve, yet this ranch is safeguarded by a conservation easement ensuring it remains an open, working agricultural property in perpetuity. An exceptional opportunity to create your legacy, featuring 57.14 acres of designated building envelopes under a flexible conservation easement— including 20 acres for a future boutique livestock processing facility, along with multiple existing and future homesites. Significant investments have been made such as a massive clean-up effort, extensive riparian area fencing, removal of dams and diversions out of Raccoon Creek, development of numerous off-creek stockwater facilities, and removal of a defunct 80-acre orchard that has been restored to natural pasture. There are numerous riparian restoration opportunities along with additional vernal pool habitat north of Raccoon Creek being evaluated.

Fall Run Ranch is more than acreage - it is enduring ground with a future as strong as its past. It is a rare opportunity to acquire and steward a legacy property. In a rapidly expanding region of California, this ranch stands as a protected agricultural stronghold - a place to build, to produce, to gather, and to pass forward. For those who value land not simply as an investment, but as an inheritance for generations to come, Fall Run Ranch is a once-in-a-lifetime offering.

Water

In the American West, water is everything. It shapes the land, sustains agriculture, supports wildlife, and ultimately determines the long-term viability and value of a property. Secure, abundant, and diversified water resources provide resilience in both drought and changing regulatory environments. Fall Run Ranch stands apart for the depth, reliability, and flexibility of its water portfolio.

Fall Run Ranch supports critical salmon spawning and migration habitat while maintaining long standing agricultural operations. The property benefits from four established water rights, in addition to the Nevada Irrigation District (NID) irrigation service, groundwater wells, three storage ponds, and supporting water infrastructure.

The four water assets on the ranch originate from stream diversions on Raccoon Creek - including License 4297, along with three riparian/pre-1914 appropriative water right claims. Three storage ponds on the ranch are fed by two different canal systems and three diversion points, enhancing operational flexibility and water security.

Fall Run Ranch receives approximately 6.75 CFS of irrigation water from the NID, enough to irrigate 771 acres of crops and pasture.

Cattle

Where grass is plentiful, water is reliable, and livestock infrastructure is already in place, great livestock operations thrive. Fall Run Ranch offers exactly that combination - a proven, income-producing property designed to support efficient, year-round livestock management.

The ample forage on the ranch currently sustains 250 to 300 head of cattle year-round with an existing income-generating cattle lease with a robust grazing management plan in place, demonstrating its productivity and carrying capacity (see Table 2. Grazing Capacity Summary below). With ample irrigation water from the Nevada Irrigation District, opportunity exists to increase the stocking rate.

Designed for efficiency and long-term sustainability, the property features comprehensive livestock facility improvements including corrals, working pens, loading chutes, perimeter fencing, and strategic cross-fencing that supports rotational grazing, while maximizing pasture performance. Over 12 miles of new fencing as well as dozens of new H-braces and gates have been recently put in. Four feeder barns, multiple other barns, and outbuildings provide valuable storage, equipment protection, and operational flexibility.

Improvements

The ranch features four homes that serve as the primary living hub. While these residences require some TLC and modernization, they offer a significant footprint and a versatile foundation for multi-generational living, on-site management, or guest accommodations.

Recreation

Set along scenic Raccoon Creek in Placer County, Fall Run Ranch offers outstanding recreational opportunities in a classic Sierra foothill setting. Rolling pastures, oak-dotted hills, and creekside corridors create an ideal environment for hiking, long walks, and horseback riding.

Raccoon Creek enhances the ranch's appeal with fishing opportunities and prime wildlife habitat. On the ranch are ducks, deer, and other game species, making it well-suited for seasonal hunting. Whether casting a line in the creek, riding the property on horseback, or exploring on foot, Fall Run Ranch delivers a true year-round outdoor experience.

Conservation Easement

In July 2025, a conservation easement was placed on Fall Run Ranch with Placer County Conservation Authority, ensuring the ranch remains in working agriculture in perpetuity. Plenty of flexibility to make the ranch your own with the 57.14 acres of building envelopes, which consist of multiple existing and future homesites, and a 20-acre future boutique livestock processing area.

The Initial Conservation Values of the Property include, but are not limited to:

- Preservation of 64 acres of Aquatic/Wetland Complex.
- Preservation of 150 acres of riverine/riparian habitat along Raccoon Creek.
- Preservation of 1,983 acres of vernal pool complex, including 35 acres of aquatic habitats as well as adjacent uplands.
- Preservation of 3 acres of Valley Oak Woodland.
- Approximately 785 acres of irrigated agricultural area.
- Restoration potential within the 1,983 acres of vernal pool complex
- In combination with adjacent existing and proposed preserves, the Property further contributes toward the establishment of large, interconnected reserve systems within the Reserve Acquisition Area in Placer County, preserving habitat linkages and maintaining permeability for wildlife.

Location

About Lincoln, CA:

Lincoln, California, situated in the heart of Placer County, is a historic city that serves as a bridge between the Sacramento Valley's agricultural roots and modern suburban growth. Founded in 1859 along the California Central Railroad, it gained prominence through its rich clay deposits, which fueled the world-renowned Gladding, McBean pottery works. Once the fastest-growing city in America, Lincoln has successfully balanced its rapid expansion with a small-town, "All-America City" atmosphere. At the 2020 census, its population was 49,757. Today, residents enjoy a high quality of life characterized by scenic golf courses, the Thunder Valley Casino, and a preserved downtown that honors its 19th-century industrial heritage.

About Placer County, CA:

Placer County, California, is a geographically diverse region that stretches from the suburban outskirts of the Sacramento Valley to the high-alpine peaks of the Sierra Nevada. Renowned for its "Gold Country" heritage, the county's identity is rooted in the 1849 Gold Rush, a legacy still visible in the historic architecture of its county seat, Auburn, and the namesake "placer" mining deposits found along the American River. Today, it stands as one of the fastest-growing and most affluent areas in the state, offering a unique balance between the modern commercial hubs of Roseville and Rocklin and the world-class outdoor recreation of North Lake Tahoe. Whether visitors are exploring the "Endurance Capital of the World" on foot, skiing at premier mountain resorts, or visiting the burgeoning wineries and orchards of the foothills, Placer County serves as a premier destination that seamlessly blends California's industrial history with its natural splendor. As of the 2020 census, the county had a population of 404,739.

Size & Zoning

The Fall Run Ranch consists of 19 parcels totaling 3,133 acres. There is a conservation easement in place. The conservation easement states that the property “will be retained forever in its natural, restored, or enhanced condition for the natural values, aquatic resources, and associated wildlife and habitat values as contemplated by the HCP/NCCP and Management Plan.”
